British Will Leave Palestine If UN Fails

CREECH-JONES TELLS GROUP MANDATE DEAD

Colony Secretary Says His Country Cannot Back Unsuccessful Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 26—Great Britain announced "with all solemnity" to the United Nations today that all British forces and administrative personnel will be withdrawn from Palestine if the U. N. fails to find a solution to the strife-torn Holy Land situation.

In the historic pronouncement before the Palestine committee, British spokesman Arthur Creech-Jones admitted that the Palestine mandate is a dead letter.

He said that his country is ready to lay down its obligations for the sake of the Holy Land's independence.

THE UNITED STATES circulated to the thousand delegates, in the meantime, a formal resolution for the establishment of an interim "little assembly" to stand guard over peace and security alongside the veto-stymied security council.

The U. S. resolution proposes a one-year "trial" of this "little assembly" before transforming it into a permanent adjunct of the United Nations and calls on the secretary general to convene the 55 national body two weeks after the current general assembly adjourns.

THE BRITISH secretary of state for colonies remained non-committal on the U. N. inquiry commission's plan for splicing Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states.

He said, however, that Britain is "in the highest degree reluctant to oppose the assembly's wishes on the future of Palestine."

He announced that the crucial question for the British government is "the enforcement" of any settlement reached on the Holy Land, except that Britain is ready to "assume the responsibility for giving effect to any plan on which agreement is reached between the Arabs and the Jews."

Creech-Jones touched the core of the issue by declaring that if the assembly reaches a solution not acceptable to the Jews and Arabs (the Arabs refuse any plan which sets up a Jewish state as proposed by the U. N. majority report) then the United Kingdom would not feel able to implement it.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

An Army private who missed important battles has been freed on a defense of amnesia. There's an idea for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Their defense might be that nothing happened to them worth remembering. I hear Crosby is looking for a transcribed team after one year of live baseball.

You never can tell where amnesia will turn up—I hear there is one case in Washington right now.

A man was overheard to say, "I remember arriving in Chicago in 1944 and that's all I remember."

At the moment Brooklyn is trying to get the Dodgers to forget 1941. Anyone who practices casting amnesiac spells will be welcomed at borough hall.

Walnut To Ballot On Bond Issue

Proposed $225,000 bond issue will be balloted on at the Nov. 4 election by voters in the Walnut township local school district.

The Walnut township board of education filed with the Pickaway county board of elections, Thursday afternoon, a certified copy of a resolution declaring the necessity for the issuance of bonds in that sum to finance a "permanent improvement" by "constructing a fireproof auditorium and gymnasium addition to the present school building and furnishing and equipping the same."

The resolution says the bonds would be dated April 1, 1948, in $1,000 denomination, and would mature annually over a 23-year period ending Oct. 1, 1971. The bonds would pay interest of 6 per cent per annum.

The resolution further provides for retirement of the bonds through a special tax levy outside the 10-mill limitation in the amount of 2.75 mills, the equivalent of 27 1/2 cents for each $100 of real estate valuation in the Walnut township school district which includes two voting precincts in Amanda township in Fairfield county.

The resolution was filed with the elections board by H. F. Solt, school board clerk.

In order to pass at the November election the proposal must be approved by not less than 65 per cent of the voters who cast a ballot on the issue.

Creighton Anderson Picked Up At Atomic Plant On Non-Support Charge

After having eluded law-enforcement officials for more than a year, Creighton Anderson, 28, former Pickaway county resident and one time "star" athlete at the Pickaway township school, was in the county jail in Circleville, Friday, awaiting arraignment before Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff on a non-support charge.

Anderson was nabbed Thursday at work as foreman in a federal government-owned atomic plant at Miamisburg, near Dayton, by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Vern L. Pontious, on a tip from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The arrest was on a secret indictment returned by the Pickaway county grand jury accusing Anderson of non-support of his wife and their four children.

PROTESTS CLOG UTILITIES OFFICE ON 'GAS' FREEZE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 26—Written and telephonic protests over the State Public Utilities Commission's fuel gas "freeze" order of Sept. 15 were flooding the PUCO offices today.

George S. Fink, administrative assistant of the commission, said that between 100 and 150 protests had been received. The greatest number of these came from Warren, but Fink said that it did not appear that there was an organized drive against the order.

Employees of the commission were being kept busy today sending out acknowledgments of the protests and notifying the writers that a public hearing on the order would be held Monday at 10 a. m. in the State Office Building at Columbus.

AT HIS PHILADELPHIA grocery store, Dick Rickert displays low cost items on which he has slashed prices in face of the inflation that has prompted nation-wide buyers' strikes. Rickert sells chicken at 39 cents a pound, hamburger at 29 cents a pound and sirloin steak at 39 cents a pound.

Driver Escapes Injury When Train Hits Truck

Harold Snider, Columbus truck driver, escaped injury but his truck was badly damaged when struck by a Norfolk and Western railway freight train Friday noon at the South Washington street grade crossing.

Snider, operating a truck belonging to the C. D. Kenney company, Columbus wholesale grocery, said a railroad employee at the crossing told him the track was clear and he started across.

The west-bound train struck the north-bound truck back of the cab and the truck overturned. The driver stayed in the truck and suffered no injuries, despite the terrific impact which caused considerable damage to the truck and knocked down a signal sign on the tracks.

Pickles, toilet paper, sugar, canned pumpkin, coffee, chili con carne, grapefruit, gobs of catsup and other eatables were scattered over the street and railroad tracks.

The truck was removed from the tracks by the Harden-Stevens company wrecker.

Traffic on the railroad and on Washington, Pickaway and Court streets was tied up while the wreck was cleared.

FROST SLATED TO HIT AREA FRIDAY NIGHT

Gardeners and farmers were warned Friday to expect frost which may kill some crops Friday night.

Wind was credited with chasing away Thursday night's scheduled frost, although the official mercury here dipped to 35 degrees. By 8 a. m. Friday temperature readings of 45 degrees were reported.

Forecasts call for nippy weather Friday night but Saturday promises to be fair and warmer for squirrel hunters and football fans.

The weather bureau's five-day outlook for Ohio follows: "Temperatures will average five degrees below normal for the period. Normal maximum, 71 degrees; normal minimum, 50 degrees. Rising temperature trend Saturday and Sunday. Cooler Monday and Tuesday. Warmer Wednesday. Precipitation will average one-tenth of an inch, with light rain about Monday."

EISLER ACCUSED OF PERJURY IN ENTERING U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Hanns Eisler, admitted former German Communist, was accused today of committing perjury by Robert Stripling, chief investigator for the house un-American activities committee.

Stripling charged at a committee hearing that the 49-year-old Hollywood composer either failed to tell the truth when he obtained visas to enter the United States in 1939 and 1940 or when he testified before the house group Wednesday.

Stripling's charge came after several witnesses testified that Eisler obtained a visitor's entrance in Mexico City and a non-quota (permanent) visa at Mexicali, Mexico, by saying under oath that he was not a Communist and had never been affiliated in any way with the Communist party.

Soviet General Denies His Country Wants To Seize Territory

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 26—Russia offered today to withdraw its occupation troops from North Korea at the start of 1948 if the United States will simultaneously pull out its forces from South Korea.

The first official proposal for the end of the divided Korean occupation was contained in a Soviet statement which, at the same time, assailed the United States and denied that Russia intends to "seize Korea."

THE STATEMENT was issued in Seoul this afternoon by Col. Gen. Terenty Shtikov, head of the Soviet delegation on the deadlocked Russo-American joint commission for Korea.

American observers interpreted the declaration as a Soviet tactical maneuver designed to remove the hot Korean issue from international discussion at the current session of the United Nations assembly.

THESE OBSERVERS labelled the statement "inflammatory" and said it had undoubtedly been issued under directions from Moscow. The Shtikov statement read, in part:

"The Soviet delegation declares that if the American delegation agrees with the proposal regarding the withdrawal of all foreign troops at the beginning of 1948, the Soviet troops will be ready to leave Korea simultaneously with the American troops."

"The Soviet delegation has no other proposals."

"It awaits an answer and proposals from the American delegation."

AT THE OUTSET of his statement, Shtikov declared: "The Soviet delegation considers it necessary to repudiate rumors coming from reactionary circles that the Soviet delegation intends to seize Korea and establish Soviet ways of life as invented and hostile to the Soviet Union."

CHOLERA FIGHT BRINGS RESULTS IN NORTH EGYPT

CAIRO, Sept. 26—Encouraging news came today in the wake of a cholera epidemic which prompted authorities to place a vast area of northern Egypt under quarantine.

Official reports placed the death list at only four, and many stricken persons were considered out of danger.

Three planes were chartered to bring from the United States enough serum to inoculate six million persons.

Offers of help came from many foreign sources, including the British army, the South African government and the Rockefeller Institute.

All Egyptian currency restrictions were lifted to enable swift importation of needed medical products from Italy and Switzerland.

MARSHALL COMPLIMENTS FOR WORK ON AID PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Secretary of State Marshall today complimented the 16 western European nations which drew up the four-year aid program for having tackled such a complex problem in so short a time.

The fact that 16 nations were able to work in such close cooperation was in itself an "important accomplishment," he said.

UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI'S Prof. Albert B. Sabin, Ohio Children's hospital pediatrician, has his parachute adjusted by Master Sgt. Earl Edson before embarking at Washington, D. C., for Germany to join the fight against serious polio epidemic.

Truman Reported After Unofficial Solon's Okay

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Capitol hill heard speculation today that President Truman wants unofficial approval by the congressional leadership for diverting funds from other agencies for the "stop-gap" feeding of Europe without calling a special session.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 26—Secretary of State Marshall today was reported considering the desirability of making another flying weekend trip to Washington to join in next Monday's White House conference of congressional leaders.

These reports circulated after Marshall had dined last night with Bernard M. Baruch, perennial adviser to presidents and other statesmen, at the Locust Valley, Long Island, home of acting secretary of state Robert A. Lovett, where Marshall is staying.

Marshall is reported to have consulted Baruch on the vital question of the necessity of calling a special session of congress.

The decision will be influenced primarily by the situation at Lake Success where Marshall is maintaining a "command post" over moment-to-moment activities of the United Nations general assembly.

ARMY, NAVY, FBI CHARGED WITH HOUNDING U E W

BOSTON, Sept. 26—The Army and Navy departments and the FBI were under indictment today by the CIO-United Electrical Workers union accused of hounding its members from industrial plants.

The allegation came in a speech by Russell Nixon, Washington, D. C., union representative. A resolution was adopted unanimously at the 12th annual convention yesterday.

The Army, Navy and FBI were accused of spying on, intimidating and ordering dismissal of UE members from industrial plants.

The union claimed the drive was based on President Truman's loyalty check on government employees and was part of the preparations for a war with Russia.

Nixon told the convention the government refused to tell discharged union members the reason for their ouster from their jobs. He declared it was a "campaign to take military intelligence and the FBI into virtually every industrial plant in America."

GRANGE CHIEF AGREES WITH TRUMAN IDEAS

Americans Urged To Give Cooperation In Cutting Down On Food

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—Albert S. Goss, president of the national Grange, said today that the calling of a special session of congress will depend upon how well the people cooperate with President Truman's appeal to conserve food.

Goss made his statement after conferring with the President at the White House.

The farm leader has made two trips to Europe investigating food conditions on that continent and declared that the United States, in its own interest, must provide food for the hungry abroad.

William Green, president of the AFL also conferred with the President today and on leaving the White House he called on business and labor to cooperate for the fullest production as a means of curbing the high cost of living.

GOSS SAID that "the price that we must pay for failure to feed Europe will be the widespread development of Communism in western Europe."

He maintained that to make sufficient quantities of food available to European American farmers must curtail the feeding of grain to livestock and grains must be diverted from the distilling of whiskey into food channels.

The Grange leader said that in order to put the food situation into balance that "every American citizen has got to cooperate in the fullest."

He said that means the housewife in the kitchen, the cooks in the restaurants, the farmer, labor, and everyone else.

Goss declared that labor must withhold further demands for wage increases despite present high prices.

He said, "if labor should insist upon further wage increases we are certain to have a disastrous inflation and economic relapse."

THE NATION faces possible meatless and wheatless days and a return to wartime rationing in the wake of President Truman's appeal for food conservation at home to combat starvation abroad.

Immediate steps for carrying out the presidential program were taken as Mr. Truman's appeal to Americans to "waste less" received general approval.

One national women's organization quickly launched a countrywide campaign for voluntary food rationing while two prominent Americans urged a return of federal controls.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN declared that one slice of bread saved daily in every home would amount to seventy million bushels of wheat annually.

There were these developments:

1. Fifteen congressional leaders and cabinet officers notified the White House they will meet with President Truman Monday to explore the necessity for a return to wartime controls on food and prices and decide whether the world food emergency demands a special session of congress.

2. The President's citizens committee on the food emergency quickly swung into action after its designation by Mr. Truman and announced a meeting next Wednesday at the White House to integrate civilian and government moves.

3. Federal reserve board chairman Marriner S. Eccles urged a return of rationing controls, either voluntary or government-imposed, while CIO President Philip Murray asked restoration of price controls and rationing of food, clothing and other necessities.

4. There was speculation in Capitol Hill that President Truman wants unofficial approval by the congressional leadership for diverting funds from other agencies for the "stop-gap" feeding of Europe without calling a special session.

5. The women's national Republican club started a campaign for voluntary food rationing. Housewives will be asked to sign a pledge card promising to plan on two meatless and two wheatless days a week, careful shopping and reduced consumption of meat, wheat and fats.

CHARLES LUCKMAN, head of the president's citizens food committee which will determine such questions as meatless days and whether the nation will have to go on a gray bread diet, declared that "America won't fail."

Luckman emphasized that the citizens committee has no police powers and its sole task will be advisory.

One congressional chief, Rep. McCormack, (D) Mass., minority floor leader, said Mr. Truman should call a special session. McCormack said:

"The appeal against food waste is admirable, but I think a special session of congress should be called at once to take up the high cost of living which is coupled with the international situation."

SEN. TAFT (R) Ohio termed Mr. Truman's food conservation suggestions "very sensible" but hinted that Monday's White House meeting may produce postponement of a decision on a special session.

LANNING SUIT TRANSFERRED TO FEDERAL COURT

Transfer of the $20,000 damage suit filed in consequence of the highway tragedy which resulted in the death of Donald Evan Lanning, 13, from the Pickaway county common pleas court in Circleville to the U. S. District court at Columbus, was ordered Friday by Judge William D. Radcliff.

The order was in compliance with a request filed by the E. and L. Transport company, Dearborn, Mich., defendant in the suit which was instituted Aug. 21, 1947 by the boy's father, David M. Lanning, administrator of the lad's estate.

The suit alleges that on May 7, 1947 Donald Evan Lanning was riding a bicycle on U. S. Route 23 in Pickaway county near the Franklin county boundary and that he was struck by a truck owned by the E. and L. Transport company.

however. He said he thought the President may be able to find funds he may use legally to meet the food emergency in Europe.

This GOP senator suggested that, in addition to the world and export-import banks, other sources might be the international monetary fund, the President's emergency fund, war-seized gold hoards, and further liquidation of foreign-held property in the United States.

Undersecretary of State Lovett has said that seized German gold would be distributed to stricken foreign countries to buy vital necessities but declared that this would not fill the need for emergency aid.

HOUSEWIVES GET CREDIT FOR DROP IN MEAT PRICE

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 26—The Toledo Housewives League, Inc., appeared today to be winning its fight for lower prices as more cuts were reported.

The league's extensive telephone chain campaign against inflationary food costs paid off with decreases in meat prices. Frank Folger, head of the Jacob Folger company, said that fresh ham, loins and smoked ham have come down four cents a pound.

Smoked meat and ready-to-eat hams were wholesaling at 68 cents a pound from the Schmidt provision company, according to Vice President Joseph W. Arnold.

Prices of other pork items were reported unchanged.

Mrs. J. L. Senn, president of the Housewives League, said members of her group expected to complete their calls Tuesday to persons listed in the greater Toledo telephone directory.

Letters have been pouring into the league from all parts of the country, Mrs. Senn said, telling of plans to start a campaign similar to the one launched in Toledo by the housewives.

HEIRESS, DISC JOCKEY WARNED TO QUIT HIDING

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26—Ann Cooper Hewitt and her fourth husband, Frank Nicholson were warned today to emerge for questioning about their elopement or face arrest.

Simultaneously, the suicide explanation of the death of "Rodeo Roy" Nicholson's third wife, Gertrude, 36, was supported by a toxicologist's statement that only an ingredient of aspirin was found in her stomach.

Nevertheless, the circumstances surrounding her death remained under official investigation.

ESCAPEE RETURNS

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 26—James Allen Westlake, 19, who embarked on a series of robberies, kidnappings and auto thefts after escaping from Mansfield reformatory May 26, was on his way back to the institution today. Franklin County Common Pleas Judge John R. King sentenced Westlake to a term of 26 to 100 years yesterday after the youth pleaded guilty.

SENT TO WILLIAMSON

Eldred Stone, 27, Williamson, W. Va., arrested Aug. 7 and lodged in the Pickaway county jail in Circleville on a statutory charge, has been released. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Friday, to the sheriff at Williamson to face a charge there of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

MOTORIST CHARGED

James A. Reed, 20, Route 1, Laurelville, home on furlough from the Navy, was arrested at 2:40 a. m. Friday on South Court street by Patrolman John W. McGinnis and William Sark on a reckless driving charge. The arresting officers said that after driving from the Crites Oil company filling station Reed "stepped on the gas", swerved to avoid hitting a parked truck, and then drove more than one block on the left side of the street. He was scheduled for a hearing before Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

STRIKERS MAKE THREATS

CAIRO, Sept. 26—Troops and police in Alexandria were alerted today following a reported threat by striking textile workers to burn down their factories. Eight thousand workers engaged in a sitdown strike were said to have threatened arson if their demands for wage increases and improved conditions were not met.

PORTSMOUTH IN LINE

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 26—Portsmouth joined the growing list of cities today which are leaping into the amusement tax field vacated by the state government. The city council passed an ordinance last night establishing a three per cent amusement admission tax.

MISSING GIRL REPORTED SEEN IN COLUMBUS

MARION, O., Sept. 26—Marion county authorities reported "nothing new" today as they probed the disappearance of 16-year-old Roxie Ann Green.

The Prospect high school girl dropped from sight exactly a week ago today, failing to return home after attending a football game.

Among tips from persons "positive" they saw Roxie Ann, Sheriff Leroy Retterer said his office was investigating the report of a Columbus filling station attendant that the girl stopped at his station Wednesday in company with three other persons.

The attendant, James Ferguson, told Columbus authorities the girl was accompanied by a man of about 23 and another couple about 20 years of age. He said they asked directions to Catlettsburg, Ky.

Ferguson, shown a photograph of the missing girl, said he was positive it was Roxie Ann.

He gave authorities a portion of the license number of the party's 1929 Ford sedan. A check with the state bureau of motor vehicles indicated the license was issued in Marion county, but Sheriff Retterer said neither the car nor the description of the girl's companions tallied with any of Roxie Ann's known associates.

SEEK PHONE WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Communications Workers of America, an independent union, today launched a drive to entice into its ranks 40,000 telephone workers now in the process of joining the CIO. The CWA strategy, interpreted in some labor quarters as a virtual declaration of war against the larger union, was revealed by Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. ESTELLA SKINNER

Mrs. Estella Skinner, 76, a Pickaway county resident most of her life who formerly lived for many years at Atlanta, died at 3:30 a. m. Friday in her home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Skinner Ploutz, 329 East Franklin street. Death followed a one-week illness and was attributed to bronchial pneumonia. She had made her home with her daughter for four years.

Mrs. Skinner was the widow of Clarence C. Skinner. She was born May 2, 1871 in Perry county, the daughter of David Jennings and Mrs. Jemima Jennings. Mrs. Skinner was a member of the Methodist church.

Survivors, besides her daughter, are seven grandchildren, all of Pickaway county, and nine great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be conducted, probably Sunday, at the Kirkpatrick and Son funeral home at New Holland. The Rev. Samuel Elsea will officiate. Burial will be in the New Holland cemetery.

after its designation by Mr. Truman and announced a meeting next Wednesday at the White House to integrate civilian and government moves.

3. Federal reserve board chairman Marriner S. Eccles urged a return of rationing controls, either voluntary or government-imposed, while CIO President Philip Murray asked restoration of price controls and rationing of food, clothing and other necessities.

4. There was speculation on Capitol Hill that President Truman wants unofficial approval by the congressional leadership for diverting funds from other agencies for the "stop-gap" feeding of Europe without calling a special session.

5. The women's national Republican club started a campaign for voluntary food rationing. Housewives will be asked to sign a pledge card promising to plan on two meatless and two wheatless days a week, careful shopping and reduced consumption of meat, wheat and fats.

CHARLES LUCKMAN, head of the president's citizens food committee which will determine such questions as meatless days and whether the nation will have to go on a gray bread diet, declared that "America won't fail."

Luckman emphasized that the citizens committee has no police powers and its sole task will be advisory.

One congressional chief, Rep. McCormack, (D) Mass., minority floor leader, said Mr. Truman should call a special session. McCormack said:

"The appeal against food waste is admirable, but I think a special session of congress should be called at once to take up the high cost of living which is coupled with the international situation."

SEN. TAFT (R) Ohio termed Mr. Truman's food conservation suggestions "very sensible" but hinted that Monday's White House meeting may produce postponement of a decision on a special session.

Other comment follows: Sen. O'Mahoney (D) Wyo. — "This is the way to bring comprehension of the overall problem before the American people who have a lot while the rest of the people have little."

Sen. Brewster (R) Maine, chairman of the war investigating committee — "I have been hoping the President

PRAVADA CLAIMS FRENCH WRITER WAS RESTRICTED

LONDON, Sept. 26—The Russian Communist newspaper Pravda asserted today that a French Communist journalist "was requested to swear on the Bible" that he would not engage in propaganda before he was admitted to the United States to report on the United Nations.

The Pravda article, written by its own special correspondents to the U. N., referred to the granting of a visa to Pierre Courtade, correspondent for the Paris L'Humanite, with severe restrictions.

The correspondents, Boris Izakov and Yuri Zhukov, related what they called the "amazing story" of M. Courtade. They said he was asked to take the oath by American officials in Paris before they would give him a visa.

They said that many members of the U. N. might like to reconsider the location of permanent headquarters of the U. N. in the U. S.

The Russian writers said: "We are aware, of course, that in the United States, where they love to speak about democracy and freedom of the press, the fact of belonging to the Communist party is regarded almost as a state crime."

"But we did not expect state department officials to apply the same yardstick to people arriving for the general assembly (of the United Nations)."

STRIKERS MAKE THREATS

CAIRO, Sept. 26—Troops and police in Alexandria were alerted today following a reported threat by striking textile workers to burn down their factories. Eight thousand workers engaged in a sitdown strike were said to have threatened arson if their demands for wage increases and improved conditions were not met.

PORTSMOUTH IN LINE

PORTSMOUTH, O., Sept. 26—Portsmouth joined the growing list of cities today which are leaping into the amusement tax field vacated by the state government. The city council passed an ordinance last night establishing a three per cent amusement admission tax.

MISSING GIRL REPORTED SEEN IN COLUMBUS

MARION, O., Sept. 26—Marion county authorities reported "nothing new" today as they probed the disappearance of 16-year-old Roxie Ann Green.

The Prospect high school girl dropped from sight exactly a week ago today, failing to return home after attending a football game.

Among tips from persons "positive" they saw Roxie Ann, Sheriff Leroy Retterer said his office was investigating the report of a Columbus filling station attendant that the girl stopped at his station Wednesday in company with three other persons.

The attendant, James Ferguson, told Columbus authorities the girl was accompanied by a man of about 23 and another couple about 20 years of age. He said they asked directions to Catlettsburg, Ky.

Ferguson, shown a photograph of the missing girl, said he was positive it was Roxie Ann.

He gave authorities a portion of the license number of the party's 1929 Ford sedan. A check with the state bureau of motor vehicles indicated the license was issued in Marion county, but Sheriff Retterer said neither the car nor the description of the girl's companions tallied with any of Roxie Ann's known associates.

SEEK PHONE WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—The Communications Workers of America, an independent union, today launched a drive to entice into its ranks 40,000 telephone workers now in the process of joining the CIO. The CWA strategy, interpreted in some labor quarters as a virtual declaration of war against the larger union, was revealed by Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president.

Deaths and Funerals

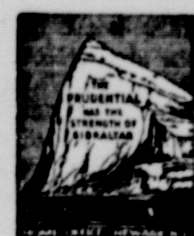

MRS. ESTELLA SKINNER

Mrs. Estella Skinner, 76, a Pickaway county resident most of her life who formerly lived for many years at Atlanta, died at 3:30 a. m. Friday in her home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Skinner Pfoutz, 329 East Franklin street. Death followed a one-week illness and was attributed to bronchial pneumonia. She had made her home with her daughter for four years.

Mrs. Skinner was the widow of Clarence C. Skinner. She was born May 2, 1871 in Perry county, the daughter of David Jennings and Mrs. Jemima Jennings. Mrs. Skinner was a member of the Methodist church.

Survivors, besides her daughter, are seven grandchildren, all of Pickaway county, and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted, probably Sunday, at the Kirkpatrick and Son funeral home at New Holland. The Rev. Samuel Elsea will officiate. Burial will be in the New Holland cemetery.

AUSTRIA AFRAID WORLD NEARING EAST-WEST WAR

Chancellor Insists Country
Must Remain Independent
To Help Keep Peace

By KINGSBURY SMITH
INS European General Manager
VIENNA, Sept. 26—Austria's political leaders and the majority of its people are fearful today that the world is drifting in the direction of war between East and West.

This fear of a third world war is far stronger in Austria than in Hungary, which was the first European country where I sought answer to the question "Is war coming?"

The Austrians are more acutely conscious of the inherent dangers in the clash of interests between Russia and the West because their country is one of the major political battlegrounds of this conflict.

THEY ARE witnessing at close hand and they are victims of the great power politics struggle that is dividing the universe into two political worlds. Nowhere is this division more evident than in the little nation which has been a gateway between East and West for more than 2,000 years, and now is carved up among four allied occupying armies.

Austria is the missing link in Soviet domination of central Europe, and the Russians are clinging stubbornly to the foothold they have in it. Just as stubbornly are the western powers, led by the United States, resisting Moscow's efforts to turn Austria into a Soviet satellite state.

Thus it is understandable why the fear is strong in Austria that this conflict of interests between two great opposing world forces may lead to another war.

HOWEVER, Austria's leaders as well as the common people are convinced that war between East and West is not inevitable.

I talked with Chancellor Leopold Figl, one of the most courageous in Austria, who knows that if the Communists gain control of this country his days are numbered, and not only politically. I talked with the leader of the Socialist party, Dr. Adolf Schaerf, who is vice-chancellor. I also talked with a cross section of the common people including Communist workers, housewives and storekeepers.

All were unanimous in the conviction that war can be avoided if sanity prevails in the leadership of the great powers.

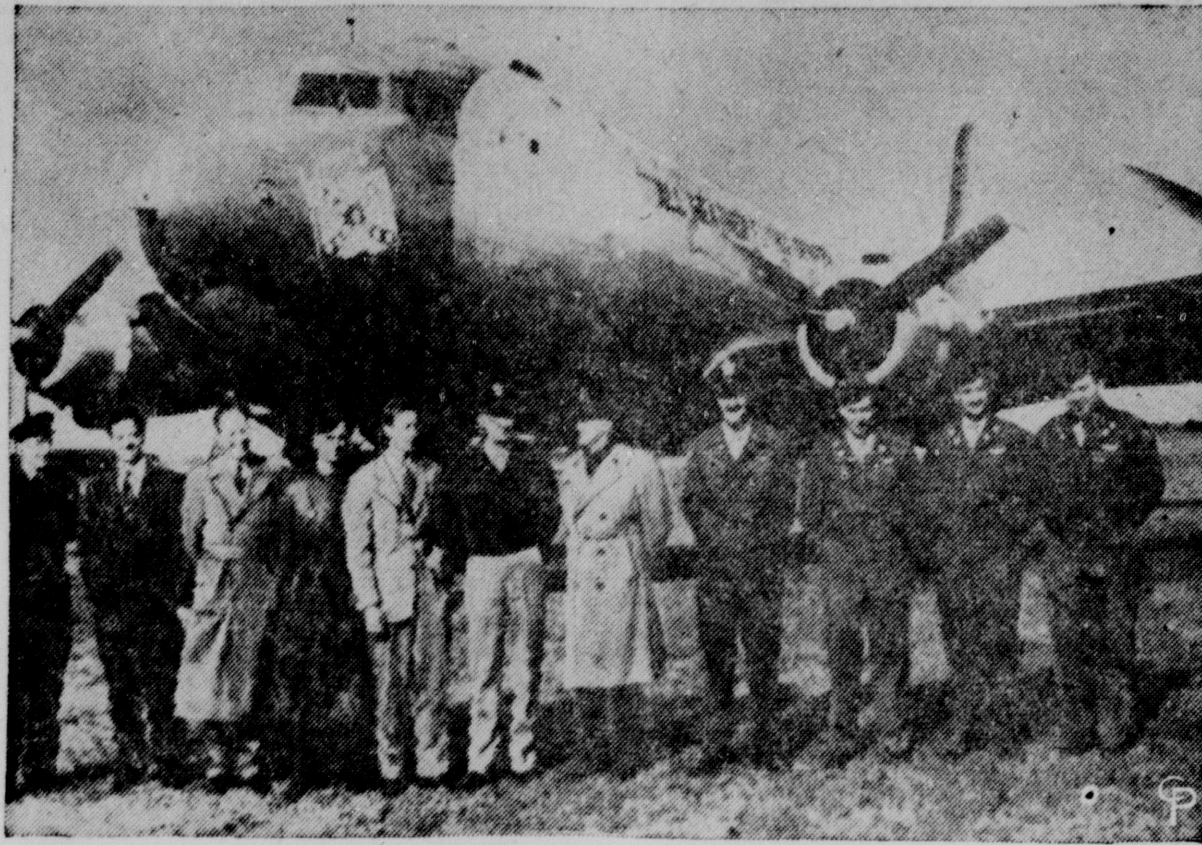

IN AN EXCLUSIVE interview granted me in the same room where another little Austrian chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, was murdered by the Nazis 13 years ago, Figl said:

"I am firmly convinced that the will for peace exists in all countries, but there are misunderstandings which must be cleared up. I do not believe a conflict between East and West is inevitable because there is no basic reason for such a clash.

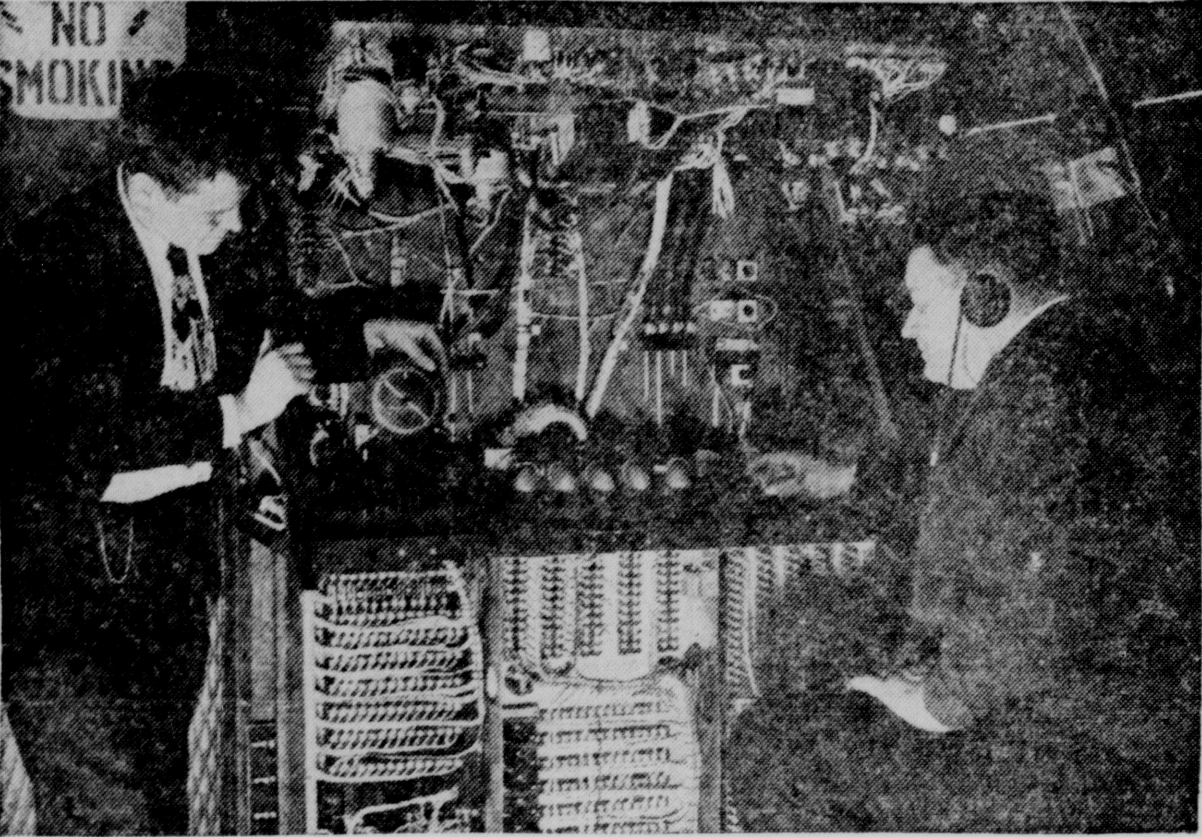

"Other fundamental causes for the outbreak of the last two wars were economical. There were struggles between industrial powers in competition against each other. There was a fight for new markets and colonies.

"As a result of the destruction caused by the last war, however, the need for goods is so great that the whole world may produce as much as it wishes for years to come. Therefore, there is no basic reason for a conflict over markets.

"If a crisis develops, it will be due to the failure of the great powers to solve the problem of distribution. This might lead to conflict, but I do not believe that ideological differences alone will do so."

I ASKED Chancellor Figl how he thought a conflict between East and West, even over the problem of economic distribution could be avoided. He replied:

"An open and clear discussion of the aims and purposes of the different powers would help avoid the danger of a third world war.

"I am fully aware that repeatedly made resolutions to abolish secret diplomacy have not been carried out. Nevertheless, I am myself a firm believer in personal discussion as the best method to overcome international tensions.

"I feel Austria can make an important contribution to peace by remaining a neutral, independent nation. Austria lies in the center of Europe. It is for the East and the West an important geographical and perhaps strategic position.

"Therefore, it is important not to let this vital gateway fall either to the East or West. We must remain independent. If we do so, we can render a contribution to the maintenance of world peace which should not be underestimated."

BANDITS GRAB $600,000 HAUL IN JEWISH CITY

JERUSALEM, Sept. 26—Jewish bandits seized $600,000 in bank funds today in a daring daylight raid in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv in which four British constables were killed and a fifth was wounded.

The bandits attacked a police car carrying the money to Barclay's bank and made off with their haul in a blaze of gunfire. A stiff battle resulted when the police sought to ward off the bandits.

Those responsible for the attack were not identified immediately but the assault recalled recent instances where underground forces have carried out raids to secure funds with which to carry on their activities.

Cornwell gave the Rotarians an insight into operations of the bureau which he said gives no publicity to the newspapers.

The speaker said the bureau's records include photos, reports, statistics, etc., and that the state operated independent bureau also conducts a training school in crime detection.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your drugist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennet Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. You don't have to starve yourself; eat sensibly per instructions on bottle. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

FARM INSTITUTE SEASON WILL ARRIVE SOON

Plans Being Made In County For Annual Winter Feature Events

Groups of men and women in Pickaway county are now preparing for the coming Farmers' Institute season, one of the high spots in the winter season for all members of farm families.

In most Ohio counties preparations are being made for the 68th opening of the institute season in November. Those officers make the local arrangements for meetings, which in the 1946-47 season drew a total attendance of 214,157 adults and 86,137 school children.

COUNTIES WHICH had an attendance of more than 8,000 persons in the last series of institutes were Hardin, Allen, Mercer, Marion, Montgomery, and Wood. The institute held at Johnsville-New Lebanon in Montgomery county drew an average of 570 persons to each of six sessions.

J. P. Schmidt, supervisor of farmers' institutes, Ohio State University, uses 15 pages in his announcement of the 68th season to list agencies which provide speakers for the institutes. The next 28 pages list individuals who are available as lecturers on institute programs.

Mr. Schmidt says farm people are interested in their own field of work, in governmental problems, in social welfare, and in all topics of general concern to good citizens. Group singing, home talent plays, and other forms of homemade recreation usually have a place on the institute programs.

A poster drawing contest for school children which draws more than 20,000 entries each year is an established feature of farmers' institutes. First place winners in the three classes last year were Phyllis J. Kerns, West Mansfield; Ferdinand Maccioli, Alliance; and Crystall Goodman, Ashley.

PROMOTION DAY SLATED SUNDAY

Methodist Church School Children To Present Special Program

Promotion day will be observed in the church school at 9:15 a. m. Sunday in the First Methodist church.

The program will be in charge of W. E. Hilyard, superintendent. At 9:30 the nursery, primary and junior departments will form a procession and take their places in the sanctuary. Following remarks by Mr. Hilyard, each department will present several numbers in song, exercises, Bible verses and story, demonstrating some of the work done during the year.

Certificates of promotion will be presented to all those who have completed their work in the department. A brief message and closing prayer by the pastor, the Rev. Elisha Kneisley, will conclude the program.

TEACHERS WHO are instructing the boys and girls of the children's division are as follows:

Nursery: Mrs. Elliott Barnhill and Mrs. Richard Funk.

Primary: Mrs. Leland Dunkle, superintendent, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Roloff Wolford, Mrs. Dorothy Gerhard, Mrs. Herbert Southward, Mrs. Ernest Young.

Junior: Wendell Turner, superintendent, Mrs. Wendell Turner, Miss Margie Carmean, Miss Jeanene Bell, W. H. Plum.

All parents are invited to be present on the above date and see what the church school is doing for the training and religious development of their children.

Circleville, who was celebrating his birthday anniversary that day. Other guests invited were Mrs. Harry Briggs, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Peterson and son Chuck and Miss Lillie Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Briggs and daughter Ann Bill, Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd James, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy May, New Holland; Miss Bess May, Washington, D. Feedlots Are Food Factories

Now, with the approach of fall, the endless streams of cattle and lambs flow down out of the high summer pastures. Last spring's pigs soon will be on the way to market. The sorting lots and corrals will soon be busy.

In the valleys and plains the feedlots begin to fill. They dam back some of this fall flood of animals... You who feed livestock know well how important this is. You realize that it helps avoid periods of glut and scarcity, by stretching out, over months, the time of marketing. You know, too, how such year 'round marketing serves to lessen big "feast-or-famine" price fluctuations. And who should understand better than you how the feedlots of America add millions of pounds to the nation's meat supply?

Feedlots save for the land much of the fertility which the selling of grain crops and hay would take out of the land. For example, you sell a steer that has gained 500 pounds in your feedlot. You are selling off your land only about 12½ pounds of nitrogen, 3 pounds of phosphorus, 1 pound of potash, which his body has absorbed out of your feeds. But suppose you were to sell as cash crops the grain and hay which you put into that steer. Then you would deplete your soil of about seven times as much nitrogen, four times as much phosphorus, and twenty times as much potash.

Keeping the soil fertile through use of manure from livestock is only one factor in judging whether "feeding" is likely to be a profitable venture. There are many others which are being constantly studied by individuals, colleges, and experiment stations. In every feeding area they are trying out new rationing, watching costs, plugging "leaks," developing more efficient feeding techniques. So if you are feeding livestock, or are considering it, it may be worth your while to consult your county agent, vocational agriculture teacher, or state agricultural college. Ask them what they have that's new in up-to-the-minute feeding information... maybe you'll find some new wrinkle that will lower your costs, increase your profit possibilities.

How many Meat Packers?

Here's an interesting thing to note. There is, on an average, more than 1,000 miles between the point where livestock is raised and the point where the meat products are eaten. Largely because of this 1,000-mile gap, national meat packers came into being. The small meat packers buy livestock locally, slaughter and sell meat in the territory surrounding their plants. In addition to this service, nationwide organizations are equipped to do another big job—and do it economically. They perform the service of moving dressed meat the long distances from areas of production to large consuming areas where relatively little livestock is produced. These areas of great meat consumption and small meat production depend upon nationwide meat packers, like Swift & Company, for a large part of their meat products. Livestock-producing areas also depend on the large meat packers, as an outlet for the livestock their immediate market cannot consume. Most livestock producers market their livestock at only one market. So they come in contact with only a few livestock buyers. Dealing with such a small number of firms leads farmers and ranchers, naturally enough, to the thought that there is only a small number of meat packers in the United States. Actually, according to the latest figures available, there are approximately 4,000 meat packers and about 22,500 other commercial slaughterers of livestock. Some slaughter millions of head per year. Others kill thousands of head annually, and still others only hundreds.

CLEAN MILK IN DIRTY CANS COSTLY PRACTICE

- Putting milk and cream into cans which have not been washed just before using is a costly farm practice.
- Milk and cream cans even though washed at plant are seldom clean enough to use without a re-washing. They may pick up dirt on the trip back to the farm or get dirtier still sitting outdoors or in a dusty building.
- Hot water, containing a wetting agent, should be used to wash the cans... scrub with a brush and rinse with clear water or sterilizer.
- After milk is placed in can, put the lid on tight—the animal heat will pass out through the side of the can into the water.
- Avoid adding warm milk to that already cooled. Cool out to 50 degrees first.

Track Down the Facts

If you ever see tracks like this in the snow, dust, or mud, you'll know there's been a white-tailed deer around. An experienced hunter can tell from the tracks how long since they were made, the approximate size of the deer, and whether it was in full flight or quietly going about its business. Deer tracking is considerably out of our line here at Swift & Company. But we do have a staff of trained fact hunters. Their job is to track down the facts which control our business operations. They study the U. S. Department of Agriculture figures on livestock supplies. They "track down" too, the demand for meat... what weights and grades housewives everywhere are asking for... what cuts they prefer. Our "fact trackers" know full well that the price of livestock is governed by what the meat packer can get for the meat and by-products.

FARM INSTITUTE SEASON WILL ARRIVE SOON

Plans Being Made In County For Annual Winter Feature Events

Groups of men and women in Pickaway county are now preparing for the coming Farmers' Institute season, one of the high spots in the winter season for all members of farm families.

In most Ohio counties preparations are being made for the 68th opening of the institute season in November. Those officers make the local arrangements for meetings, which in the 1946-47 season drew a total attendance of 214,157 adults and 86,137 school children.

COUNTIES WHICH had an attendance of more than 8,000 persons in the last series of institutes were Hardin, Allen, Mercer, Marion, Montgomery, and Wood. The institute held at Johnsville-New Lebanon in Montgomery county drew an average of 570 persons to each of six sessions.

J. P. Schmidt, supervisor of farmers' institutes, Ohio State University, uses 15 pages in his announcement of the 68th season to list agencies which provide speakers for the institutes. The next 28 pages list individuals who are available as lecturers on institute programs.

Mr. Schmidt says farm people are interested in their own field of work, in governmental problems, in social welfare, and in all topics of general concern to good citizens. Group singing, home talent plays, and other forms of homemade recreation usually have a place on the institute programs.

A poster drawing contest for school children which draws more than 20,000 entries each year is an established feature of farmers' institutes. First place winners in the three classes last year were Phyllis J. Kerns, West Mansfield; Ferdinand Maccioli, Alliance; and Crystal Goodman, Ashley.

New "Slant" Saves Pigs

Farrowing pens with sloping floors are the answer to clumsy sows that step or lie on baby pigs. The slant of the floor takes advantage of the natural tendency of sows to lie with their backs uphill, while the tiny baby pigs tumble downhill safely out of her way. Used extensively in Kentucky, sloping floors have cut baby pig losses to only one out of thirty, according to W. P. Garrigus of the University of Kentucky. He writes: "Crushing or crippling by brood sows is the chief cause of pig losses. Normally, one out of every five new-born pigs is doomed to be mangled or severely crippled by clumsy, awkward brood sows the first day or so after farrowing. This loss to the swine industry adds up to a staggering total. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, each pig killed at farrowing represents a loss of 140 pounds of the feed consumed by the sow during the gestation and suckling periods. Figuring two pigs killed to the litter, this loss in one year alone, 1944, cost hog men 75 million dollars. "Very little of this tremendous loss needs to be tolerated. Three years of experimentation and observation of herd tests in Kentucky show that sows farrowing on sloping floors raised from one to four pigs more than when they farrowed on level floors. On 49 Kentucky farms where records have been kept, with 385 litters, an average of only one pig out of 30 farrowed has been crushed on sloping floors. "The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., has detailed information on sloping floors for farrowing pens, instructions for building, etc.

RETAILERS SAY BUYER TO BLAME AT CLEVELAND

Consumers Pay High Prices
To Get Best, High Cost
Probers Told

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26—Members of a congressional subcommittee investigating high costs of living took testimony from a three-day hearing in Cleveland back in their offices today in an effort to find a solution to the complex problem.

Blame for high food cost was tossed back onto the consumer by retail dealers in the concluding day of the hearings yesterday.

Joseph R. Gibbons, vice-president in charge of merchandising for the Fisher Brothers company, accused buyers of being "more interested in procuring the merchandise than in the price they had to pay for it."

Consumer demand, he charged, forced the retail grocery concern to buy high-priced items which the company "had resisted."

ADAM GUTH, chairman of the board of directors of the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers association also rapped the public.

"The consumer apparently still has enough money to be choosy about the type of meats he wants," Guth told the committee. "He complains about the high prices, but he still insists on getting the particular cut he wants and will overlook lower priced meat."

His stand was supported by Frank J. Klinger, president of the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers association.

One witness told of lower priced goods. I. J. Kusse, president of the Greenhouse Vegetable Packing company, a farmers' co-operative, reported wholesale prices of many fresh foods below prewar costs.

Rep. George H. Bender, (R) Ohio congressman-at-large, is chairman of the mid-America investigating sub-committee conducting the Cleveland hearings.

Farmers--- Pick Your Corn Early!

USE BEHLEN ALL-STEEL VENTILATORS IN THE CRIB
TO KEEP IT FROM SPOILING!

- Moderately wet corn can be dried successfully with Behlen ventilators. They permit much greater circulation of air through your corn than old fashioned wooden ventilators. Take up less room.
- MADE OF STRONG WELDED STEEL MESH formed into a round tube with openings or mesh measuring about 1 3/4 inches by 3 3/4 inches. It's all air space, no 2 x 4's and cross pieces to shut off air circulation.
- NO BOLTS OR FASTENERS. These tube sections of this welded steel mesh interlock and you can use as many as necessary to provide one or more air channels through your corn.
- HORIZONTAL VENTILATION through the corn is effected with Behlen all-steel ventilators. Wind passing around a crib creates a suction. The ventilator lying horizontally in the corn takes advantage of this law of nature and puts the wind to work drying your corn.

USE BEHLEN ALL-STEEL TUNNELS ON THE FLOOR OF THE CRIB

- Behlen all-steel tunnels are oval sections of heavy gauge welded steel mesh, 18 inches high and 18 inches wide. They are constructed to carry the weight of as much corn as you can pile on them in the crib. Placed snugly end to end on the floor of the crib they make a continuous channel through the corn.

The installation of Behlen Ventilators also prevents heating in hay, both in stacks and in barns.

RETAILERS SAY BUYER TO BLAME AT CLEVELAND

Consumers Pay High Prices
To Get Best, High Cost
Probers Told

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26—Members of a congressional subcommittee investigating high costs of living took testimony from a three-day hearing in Cleveland back in their offices today in an effort to find a solution to the complex problem.

Blame for high food cost was tossed back onto the consumer by retail dealers in the concluding day of the hearings yesterday.

Joseph R. Gibbons, vice-president in charge of merchandising for the Fisher Brothers company, accused buyers of being "more interested in procuring the merchandise than in the price they had to pay for it."

Consumer demand, he charged, forced the retail grocery concern to buy high-priced items which the company "had resisted."

ADAM GUTH, chairman of the board of directors of the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers association also rapped the public.

"The consumer apparently still has enough money to be choosy about the type of meats he wants," Guth told the committee. "He complains about the high prices, but he still insists on getting the particular cut he wants and will overlook lower priced meat."

His stand was supported by Frank J. Klinger, president of the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers association.

One witness told of lower priced goods. I. J. Kuske, president of the Greenhouse Vegetable Packing company, a farmers' co-operative, reported wholesale prices of many fresh foods below prewar costs.

Rep. George H. Bender, (R) Ohio congressman-at-large, is chairman of the mid-America investigating subcommittee conducting the Cleveland hearings.

DOES COLLEGE PAY?

THE tremendously increased demand for a college education is hard to explain. It is not necessarily due to the hope that a degree will mean ultimate higher income. Today many a non-college-trained person earns more than the graduate. According to McFadden Publications, Inc., weekly average wages last year, and higher now, for electricians, plumbers, carpenters, glaziers, boiler makers and crane operators were from $80 to $89. None of these skills requires college training.

Teachers, prominent among college-bred persons, frequently hold graduate degrees. But despite much effort they have not yet attained a $2,500 national annual minimum, or $50 a week. Weekly pay for bank tellers, credit investigators, personnel directors, cost analysts, draftsmen — practically all college people — ranges from $46 for tellers to $72 for draftsmen.

It thus seems that a college education from an investment standpoint is a poor risk. With college fees and personal living costs up, one year's education costs from $1,000 to $2,000, often more. Academic standards are high, making classroom work harder. Every campus is so crowded that much of the former pleasure of college days is missing.

Why go to college? The answer seems to be so that a person can assimilate and demonstrate cultured thoughts afterwards.

MORE DISCOVERIES

IN SOUTHERN Peru a history professor from Long Island University puzzled over a series of intricate markings extending for some 40 miles along a vast desert. The markings on the sand, made with pebbles and dirt and often in the shape of roads, seemed ghost-like. Aerial views helped. Figures of birds, spiders and geometric shapes emerged. A woman scientist of Peru began to study charts of the desert puzzle.

It became apparent that the amazing figures had been used by ancient native peoples in making astronomical observations. By careful study of the sun's setting and the position of stars in relation to the markings the people were proved to have been accurate astronomers. They lived long ago, long before the golden age of the Incas. Their culture and religion, it is now known, were bound up with what they learned of the heavens. Once the markings are entirely deciphered, an entire new chapter of man's life on earth may be revealed.

The incident serves to show there is still much about this old world and its inhabitants to be learned. The airplane is opening up hidden reaches of heretofore little-known areas. But earth has still its mysteries, still its undiscovered ancient countries.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

When the Marshall plan was proposed, it was made clear that an innovation was being established. Instead of providing a general handout as heretofore, the United States would help those who helped themselves.

Secretary George Marshall proposed a conference at which the Europeans would analyze their own capacities to the end that the United States would provide the essential deficit. But the essence of the Marshall plan was that lend-lease, direct or indirect, legal by act of congress or surreptitious through relief, was at an end. It was no longer intended that the wealth of the United States would be siphoned off, that goods would be kept scarce and prices high here because of unusual and excessive exports abroad. That, in essence, was the plan and it has gone by the board.

Actually, the Marshall plan was an error, not of intent but of optimism. With the best of intentions and with the highest regard for his own country, Geo. Marshall actually invited the Europeans to gang up on us. This they have ably done, but even more, they have laid the basis for future gangings-up. Instead of limiting this transaction to book-keeping and balance sheets, they have moved into the political atmosphere of a crisis. They have produced an "either-or" situation. Unless we give them the money, they will go Communist. Unless we subsidize those now in control of these European states, their own Communists will come into power and their countries will be included among the Russian satellite states. We are being threatened by the spectre of Soviet Europe—and we are being frightened into paying blackmail to that spectre.

It is like during the war. Every time the United States questioned the policy of Soviet Russia, our wise men were, in effect, threatened with the prospect that Russia might quit the war. It never occurred to them to say to Stalin: "Will Hitler let you quit?" It also never occurred to them to say: "What will Hitler do to you if we quit you?" The British and American statesmen were too honorable, too candid to do that kind of blackmailing, although steadily from the very beginning of our association with Soviet Russia, it was on the basis of "give-or-else!"

We do not learn from experience. This new crisis is established to create public opinion in the United States, favorable to giving Europe cash and credits, equivalent to $15,810,000,000 plus $3,110,000,000 from the international bank — which is mostly our money. The rest of the American continent is to put up $5,970,000,000. The crisis is that unless the United States forks out, most of Europe will go Communist.

Well, if it is as easy for Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, the Scandinavian and other European countries—16 of them altogether—to go Communist, the question arises whether their character is good enough to continue providing credits. If they are so weak that they fear their own people, what assurance do we have that any credits we provide will do any good? We need some assurance that if we rebuild their factories, provide electrification and go through with the whole program, we are not really strengthening the Russian war base.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Milder Form of Typhus And a Disease Related to It

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TYPHUS has been known and dreaded for centuries as one of the devastating epidemic diseases which sweep across whole countries in the wake of war and famine.

In the United States we have fortunately never had this severe form of typhus, but there have been outbreaks of a milder type known as scrub typhus, and also of a related disease known as Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. This group of infections is known as rickettsial diseases because they are caused by organisms known as Rickettsia.

No Specific Treatment

Until recently, no specific treatment for these conditions had been available.

For Rocky Mountain spotted fever, and epidemic typhus, serums have been developed, but to have any appreciable effect these serums had to be administered in the first three days of the disease. Unfortunately, the rickettsial diseases are difficult to diagnose, and it is unusual for the diagnosis to be made as early as the first three days.

About four years ago, it was found that a substance called para-aminobenzoic acid had some effect on these rickettsial diseases. The effects of this preparation on scrub typhus, which occurs in the Far East, was brought out.

In a group of patients studied, every other patient was given the preparation, while the remainder of the patients were treated in other ways. In the cases treated with the para-aminobenzoic acid, no deaths occurred, while the disorder was fatal in about one out of five in those treated with other methods.

Improvement in the condition

started as soon as the administration of the drug was begun. After two or three days, the temperature began to drop, and the lymph glands, which had become enlarged, became smaller in size.

It was noted that in some of the patients treated with para-aminobenzoic acid, a great decrease in the number of white blood cells occurred. The use of the drug then had to be stopped, but after four or five days the number of white blood cells began again to increase, and the white count was normal at the time the patients were discharged.

Thus, when para-aminobenzoic acid is used, the white blood cells should be counted every two days, and, if a drop occurs, the use of the drug should be stopped. The patients should be given plenty of fluids during the treatment.

The earlier treatment is started, the better the results. It would appear to be worth while to give para-aminobenzoic acid further trial in the rickettsial disorders, since it we seem to have our first "directed missile" against a whole group of very dangerous diseases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. L. B.: Is superfluous hair sometimes caused by glandular ailments? What is the best treatment for this condition?

Answer: Superfluous hair is sometimes caused by glandular ailments. There is an occasional instance where a disease of one of the glands of internal secretion may cause an increase in the amount of hair, but usually the cause of this condition is not definitely known.

Best treatment for removing the hair is by the electric needle.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

THE TALL, dark-haired girl, who didn't especially want a roommate, but whose landlady was insistent that the room be occupied by two people and thus bring in double income, looked Gail over carefully.

"I'm Denise Ryan," she said, and nodded when Gail gave her name. "What's your line? Your job?" "I haven't one yet," Gail admitted. "But I thought it would be best to find a place to live first."

"Smart thinking," Denise answered. "What do you do?" Gail hesitated and flushed painfully. "I'm afraid I'm not very well trained for business," she confessed.

"This'll be your first job?" "Yes."

"Oh, well, you're good looking and you look intelligent. The department stores are howling their heads off for clerks. You'll connect," said Denise, and added sharply, "Your share of the room rent will be thirty bucks a month—in advance."

Gail promptly produced it and Denise nodded. "Okay, pick up your bags and come on in. I guess we'll get along," she agreed.

Gail was deeply relieved. She settled herself in, careful to take only her share of the room, and then when she was ready to start out for a job, Denise gave shrewd advice.

"You could go around and apply at the stores and probably snag yourself something," she suggested. "But if I were you, I'd hop out to the United States Employment Office. They'll give you an aptitude test and help you figure out where you'd do best. And they don't charge you anything. If an employment office gets you a job they take your first month's pay as commission!"

Gail thanked her humbly and went out to the big, rambling office on Marietta Street. A girl at the reception desk was pleasant and friendly; the older woman to whom Gail was turned over was equally pleasant, and even more interested. She encouraged Gail to talk, asked pertinent questions, and put her through a few tests. And then the woman stood up and said, "Wait here, will you? I'll be right back."

"Of course," said Gail eagerly. "Oh—and if the phone rings while I'm gone, answer it for me, will you?" suggested the woman casually. "Just say that I am not here, and ask if they care to leave a message, and take it down."

Gail nodded and the woman went briskly along the aisle between the other desks and through a door marked "Private."

Gail waited, looking about her with interest, caught up out of herself by the activity that went on about her; watching the groups of people outside the railing who were seeking work and waiting to take the aptitude tests that would determine what work suited them.

The telephone beside her shrilled so violently that she jumped a little, and remembering the woman's request, she lifted the receiver and spoke.

"Miss Hastings, please," said a curt voice in her ear.

"I'm sorry, she isn't here just now," answered Gail. "May I take a message for her? Or would you care to leave your number so that she can call you when she returns?"

"Yeah, I guess I'll leave a message," said the voice. Gail lifted a pencil and a little pad of paper and began taking the message. An involved, rather complicated thing, but she took it carefully and then read it back to the voice, which said, "Yeah—that's it," laconically, and clicked the phone down.

Five minutes later, when Miss Hastings came back, Gail gave her the message. Miss Hastings read it carefully, then looked up at Gail and smiled.

"I think we have just the thing for you," she said, and wrote something on a printed form. "We've been trying for weeks to get a receptionist with a nice telephone personality, who can be depended on to be soothing over the telephone and get messages accurately. It's in a doctor's office, and I believe you will do. Suppose you go out and see him."

Gail said, wide-eyed, "That phone call I took for you?" Miss Hastings smiled. "Was part of the aptitude test," she admitted, and Gail laughed with her and hurried out.

Dr. Stewart's office was in an imposing building well out Peachtree Street. The office itself was a suite: a large and handsomely appointed reception room with comfortable chrome and leather chairs around the wall; a big table in the center on which there was a white pottery bowl filled with growing plants, and stacked neatly by on either side were current magazines. Opening out of this was the office where Dr. Stewart saw his patients, and beyond that an examining room.

It was shortly after noon when Gail presented herself. A tired-looking nurse whose starched uniform was a little limp at the collar and the wrists at this hour of a blistering hot day, looked up at her from the telephone.

"Sorry," she said curtly. "The doctor isn't making any more appointments for the day."

Her slight nod indicated the several women who still waited.

"Oh, but I'm not a patient," answered Gail and held out the printed slip which had been given to her at the employment office. The nurse accepted it, raised her eyebrows a little, and said briefly, "Just a moment."

She disappeared into the office marked, "Dr. Stewart—Private." Gail looked curiously about her. The women who were waiting were smartly dressed, obviously not poor, and they eyed her curiously.

The nurse said from the doorway, "In here."

Gail followed her into a small, well-furnished office, where a middle-aged, graying man sat behind a desk. He watched Gail as she came into the room, and the nurse said crisply, "Well, here she is, Doctor—a girl who wants to work here. And she looks completely sane, too!"

Dr. Stewart rubbed a tired hand across his brow and sighed. "A joy to look on someone perfectly healthy," he admitted.

"Wait until she's been here a few weeks—she'll look as if she'd been through the wringer, just as you and I do," said the nurse, and went out.

Half an hour later Gail had answered Dr. Stewart's questions, and he stood up, saying, "Suppose you report for duty in the morning, Miss Prentice. Ada will show you the ropes."

Gail went out into the hot street with her heart singing a little. She was going to earn her own living! She was going to be independent, pay her own way. Unconsciously her shoulders straightened a little and for a fleeting moment she looked straight into Greg's bitter, contemptuous eyes without quailing. He had thought her a spoiled and useless piece of femininity, interested only in getting her predatory claws upon money—anybody's money, no matter how she might manage to come by it. But now she was a wage earner. She would work hard. She would justify Dr. Stewart's faith in her. And she would forget Greg Thompson, and a shabby, but somehow endearing little cabin tucked away in the woods beside a stream, where she had stored away her happy dreams.

It was a promise she made to herself. From this day forward, she would bend all her energies, her thoughts, and her courage to keeping that promise! It wasn't going to be easy. Her heart shrank at the difficult task it was going to be. But she had youth and courage and some small tattered rags of pride. She would rebuild her shattered self-respect by keeping that promise faithfully and completely.

Knowledge that you can throw a particular defender into the lead with a card in his hand, is often the key information that enables a fine declarer to make his contract. As he listens to the bidding of the others he makes deductions regarding the holdings of the various players. He gets additional information as the play proceeds, until finally he sees just how to work out his puzzle.

North made an awful big pass on his first turn, so took very positive action with his second round double. After South's 1-No Trump, North should have hopped all the way into 3-No Trumps, but got into his shell again as an ultra-conservative by raising to only the two level. South knew North as a timid bidder, however, so went the rest of the way.

suits. West opened the K, led the 6 to the A, and East returned the J to the Q. South thereupon noted that East retained the 10, a card with which he could be thrown into the lead later. Preparing his end-play, he ran four diamonds, noting East's discard of a heart, then led toward his club K, being certain East had the A, because he required it for his opening bid to be sound. East played low and the K won. The heart K and A then stripped East of those suits.

East was now pretty well marked as having the A and another club, plus his spade 10. The latter card put him in when the 9 was led. With his club A-10, he had to give the game trick up to the dummy's Q.

You no doubt can figure out a better defense than was offered, one which could have even South a much meaner job to do. But you must admit he seized upon his opportunities when they were presented.

Anderson Still Seen No. 1 | Senator McGrath Possibility To Become Demos' Chairman | For Post at Party's Helm

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Just who will succeed Robert Hannegan as chairman of the Democratic national committee will be settled in the very near future.

It still looks like Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico. Closest advisers to President Truman say he is the chief executive's first choice. It is all up to Anderson, who is returning to Washington after a long vacation.

If Anderson takes the Hannegan post, it is a cinch that the job of executive director now held by Gael Sullivan will be continued with either Sullivan or a young politico from the east with a knowledge of city politics in the post.

Those closest to the White House say reports that Judge James P. McGrath, of Pennsylvania, will become national chairman and also enter the cabinet as postmaster general are discounted. These sources put the ex-congressman from the Keystone state at the bottom of the list.

Close on Anderson's heels is Senator James McGrath of Rhode Island.

However, at this moment in Washington, Anderson is still looked upon as the man who will finally head up the 1948 Democratic national campaign with the aid of someone from the east.

● EISENHOWER "THREAT" GROWS—The professional politicians, complexioned already tinged with that smoky hotel-room pallor, are seeing Gen. Eisenhower more and more as a threat to the Republican presidential nomination.

Latest hint to these "wise money" men was Harold Stassen's "wouldn't say yes, but wouldn't say no" to the question of whether he would accept second place on a GOP ticket led by Ike.

Thirty seconds before, a group of ballot-wise Washington reporters had had no trouble eliciting from Stassen the crisp statement that he would not run on the same ticket with New York's Gov. Tom Dewey.

What the aggressive former Minnesota governor and naval veteran actually said regarding Eisenhower was: "I'd rather not answer that in deference to the general's wishes."

The liberator of Europe, soon to doff khaki for the educator's gown as president of Columbia university, has stated that he is not a candidate for public office.

However, Stassen and Eisenhower conferred at length several weeks ago at the Minnesota state fair.

Stassen insists that he is interested only in the presidency, but it is believed by political experts that he sees in Eisenhower a progressive willing and able to unseat the GOP Old Guard, which the Minnesotan has opposed bitterly and consistently.

● SENATORS SQUEEZED OUT—The Senate was investigating committee, founded on a resolution authored by President Truman when he was a senator and originally headed by him, has run into a streak of bad luck.

The "jinx" began, in the opinion of some observers, with the Howard Hughes plane contract hearings during which the audience, at least, sided with Hughes and other witnesses and against the committee. In the face of widespread criticism, the hearings were suddenly discontinued until Nov. 15.

Later, Senator Owen Brewster (R), Maine, committee chairman, announced that he would not attempt to have the unit continued beyond its present life, which is due to expire Jan. 31. His announcement came as a surprise, since a number of Republicans had counted on the committee functioning throughout the 1948 presidential campaign year.

The third blow came with an announcement by a House subcommittee headed by Rep. George Bender (R), Ohio, that it was investigating the alleged squandering of millions of dollars in settlement of war contracts.

The Senate committee had expected to go into this matter. But with the House group already holding hearings, Brewster's committee decided to forget about the war contract settlements. It found itself backed off the calendar for the first time.

DOES COLLEGE PAY?

THE tremendously increased demand for a college education is hard to explain. It is not necessarily due to the hope that a degree will mean ultimate higher income. Today many a non-college-trained person earns more than the graduate. According to McFadden Publications, Inc., weekly average wages last year, and higher now, for electricians, plumbers, carpenters, glaziers, boiler makers and crane operators were from $80 to $89. None of these skills requires college training.

Teachers, prominent among college-bred persons, frequently hold graduate degrees. But despite much effort they have not yet attained a $2,500 national annual minimum, or $50 a week. Weekly pay for bank tellers, credit investigators, personnel directors, cost analysts, draftsmen — practically all college people—ranges from $46 for tellers to $72 for draftsmen.

It thus seems that a college education from an investment standpoint is a poor risk. With college fees and personal living costs up, one year's education costs from $1,000 to $2,000, often more. Academic standards are high, making classroom work harder. Every campus is so crowded that much of the former pleasure of college days is missing.

Why go to college? The answer seems to be so that a person can assimilate and demonstrate cultured thoughts afterwards.

MORE DISCOVERIES

IN SOUTHERN Peru a history professor from Long Island University puzzled over a series of intricate markings extending for some 40 miles along a vast desert. The markings on the sand, made with pebbles and dirt and often in the shape of roads, seemed ghost-like. Aerial views helped. Figures of birds, spiders and geometric shapes emerged. A woman scientist of Peru began to study charts of the desert puzzle.

It became apparent that the amazing figures had been used by ancient native peoples in making astronomical observations. By careful study of the sun's setting and the position of stars in relation to the markings the people were proved to have been accurate astronomers. They lived long ago, long before the golden age of the Incas. Their culture and religion, it is now known, were bound up with what they learned of the heavens. Once the markings are entirely deciphered, an entire new chapter of man's life on earth may be revealed.

The incident serves to show there is still much about this old world and its inhabitants to be learned. The airplane is opening up hidden reaches of heretofore little-known areas. But earth has still its mysteries, still its undiscovered ancient countries.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

When the Marshall plan was proposed, it was made clear that an innovation was being established. Instead of providing a general handout as heretofore, the United States would help those who helped themselves.

Secretary George Marshall proposed a conference at which the Europeans would analyze their own capacities to the end that the United States would provide the essential deficit. But the essence of the Marshall plan was that lend-lease, direct or indirect, legal by act of congress or surreptitious through relief, was at an end. It was no longer intended that the wealth of the United States would be siphoned off, that goods would be kept scarce and prices high here because of unusual and excessive exports abroad. That, in essence, was the plan and it has gone by the board.

Actually, the Marshall plan was an error, not of intent but of optimism. With the best of intentions and with the highest regard for his own country, Geo. Marshall actually invited the Europeans to gang up on us. This they have ably done, but even more, they have laid the basis for future gangings-up. Instead of limiting this transaction to book-keeping and balance sheets, they have moved into the political atmosphere of a crisis. They have produced an "either-or" situation. Unless we give them the money, they will go Communist. Unless we subsidize those now in control of these European states, their own Communists will come into power and their countries will be included among the Russian satellite states. We are being threatened by the spectre of Soviet Europe—and we are being frightened into paying blackmail to that spectre.

It is like during the war. Every time the United States questioned the policy of Soviet Russia, our wise men were, in effect, threatened with the prospect that Russia might quit the war. It never occurred to them to say to Stalin: "Will Hitler let you quit?" It also never occurred to them to say: "What will Hitler do to you if we quit you?" The British and American statesmen were too honorable, too candid to do that kind of blackmailing, although steadily from the very beginning of our association with Soviet Russia, it was on the basis of "give-or-else!"

We do not learn from experience. This new crisis is established to create public opinion in the United States, favorable to giving Europe cash and credits, equivalent to $15,810,000,000 plus $3,110,000,000 from the international bank — which is mostly our money. The rest of the American continents is to put up $5,970,000,000. The crisis is that unless the United States forks out, most of Europe will go Communist.

Well, if it is as easy for Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, the Scandinavian and other European countries—16 of them altogether—to go Communist, the question arises whether their character is good enough to continue providing credits. If they are so weak that they fear their own people, what assurance do we have that any credits we provide will do any good? We need some assurance that if we rebuild their factories, provide electrification and go through with the whole program, we are not really strengthening the Russian war base.

A Milder Form of Typhus And a Disease Related to It

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TYPHUS has been known and dreaded for centuries as one of the devastating epidemic diseases which sweep across whole countries in the wake of war and famine.

In the United States we have fortunately never had this severe form of typhus, but there have been outbreaks of a milder type known as scrub typhus, and also of a related disease known as Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. This group of infections is known as rickettsial diseases because they are caused by organisms known as Rickettsia.

No Specific Treatment

Until recently, no specific treatment for these conditions had been available.

For Rocky Mountain spotted fever, and epidemic typhus, serums have been developed, but to have any appreciable effect these serums had to be administered in the first three days of the disease. Unfortunately, the rickettsial diseases are difficult to diagnose, and it is unusual for the diagnosis to be made as early as the first three days.

About four years ago, it was found that a substance called para-aminobenzoic acid had some effect on these rickettsial diseases. The effects of this preparation on scrub typhus, which occurs in the Far East, was brought out.

In a group of patients studied, every other patient was given the preparation, while the remainder of the patients were treated in other ways. In the cases treated with the para-aminobenzoic acid, no deaths occurred, while the disorder was fatal in about one out of five in those treated with other methods. Improvement in the condition started as soon as the administration of the drug was begun. After two or three days, the temperature began to drop, and the lymph glands, which had become enlarged, became smaller in size.

It was noted that in some of the patients treated with para-aminobenzoic acid, a great decrease in the number of white blood cells occurred. The use of the drug then had to be stopped, but after four or five days the number of white blood cells began again to increase, and the white count was normal at the time the patients were discharged.

Thus, when para-aminobenzoic acid is used, the white blood cells should be counted every two days, and, if a drop occurs, the use of the drug should be stopped. The patients should be given plenty of fluids during the treatment.

The earlier treatment is started, the better the results. It would appear to be worth while to give para-aminobenzoic acid further trial in the rickettsial disorders, since in us we seem to have our first "directed missile" against a whole group of very dangerous diseases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. L. B.: Is superfluous hair sometimes caused by glandular ailments? What is best treatment for this condition?

Answer: Superfluous hair is sometimes caused by glandular ailments. There is an occasional instance where a disease of one of the glands of internal secretion may cause an increase in the amount of hair, but usually the cause of this condition is not definitely known.

Best treatment for removing the hair is by the electric needle.

Anderson Still Seen No. 1 | Senator McGrath Possibility To Become Demos' Chairman | For Post at Party's Helm

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Just who will succeed Robert Hannegan as chairman of the Democratic national committee will be settled in the very near future.

It still looks like Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico. Closest advisers to President Truman say he is the chief executive's first choice. It is all up to Anderson, who is returning to Washington after a long vacation.

If Anderson takes the Hannegan post, it is a cinch that the job of executive director now held by Gael Sullivan will be continued with either Sullivan or a young politico from the east with a knowledge of city politics in the post.

Those closest to the White House say reports that Judge James P. McGrath, of Pennsylvania, will become national chairman and also enter the cabinet as postmaster general are discounted. These sources put the ex-congressman from the Keystone state at the bottom of the list.

Close on Anderson's heels is Senator James McGrath of Rhode Island.

However, at this moment in Washington, Anderson is still looked upon as the man who will finally head up the 1948 Democratic national campaign with the aid of someone from the east.

● EISENHOWER "THREAT" GROWS—The professional politicos, complexioned already tinged with that smoky hotel-room pallor, are seeing Gen. Ike Eisenhower more and more as a threat for the Republican presidential nomination.

Latest hint to these "wise money" men was Harold Stassen's "wouldn't say yes, but wouldn't say no" to the question of whether he would accept second place on a GOP ticket led by Ike.

Thirty seconds before, a group of ballot-wise Washington reporters had had no trouble eliciting from Stassen the crisp statement that he would not run on the same ticket with New York's Gov. Tom Dewey.

What the aggressive former Minnesota governor and naval veteran actually said regarding Eisenhower was: "I'd rather not answer that in deference to the general's wishes."

The liberator of Europe, soon to doff khaki for the educator's gown as president of Columbia university, has stated that he is not a candidate for public office.

However, Stassen and Eisenhower conferred at length several weeks ago at the Minnesota state fair.

Stassen insists that he is interested only in the presidency, but it is believed by political experts that he sees in Eisenhower a progressive willing and able to unseat the GOP Old Guard, which the Minnesotan has opposed bitterly and consistently.

● SENATORS SQUEEZED OUT—The Senate war investigating committee, founded on a resolution authored by President Truman when he was a senator and originally headed by him, has run into a streak of bad luck.

The "jinx" began, in the opinion of some observers, with the Howard Hughes plane contract hearings during which the audience, at least, sided with Hughes and other witnesses and against the committee. In the face of widespread criticism, the hearings were suddenly discontinued until Nov. 15.

Later, Senator Owen Brewster (R), Maine, committee chairman, announced that he would not attempt to have the unit continued beyond its present life, which is due to expire Jan. 31.

His announcement came as a surprise, since a number of Republicans had counted on the committee functioning throughout the 1948 presidential campaign year.

The third blow came with an announcement by a House subcommittee headed by Rep. George Bender (R), Ohio, that it was investigating the alleged squandering of millions of dollars in settlement of war contracts.

The Senate committee had expected to go into this matter. But with the House group already holding hearings, Brewster's committee decided to forget about the war contract settlements. It found itself backed off the calendar for the first time.

Miss Madison Weds Harold Bainbridge

Ceremony Performed
In Presbyterian
Manse Here

At an impressive double ring ceremony Thursday evening Miss Lois Elaine Madison, North Scioto street, exchanged nuptial vows with Harold McDewitt Bainbridge, Mingo Junction. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Beulah Hitt Madison, North Scioto street, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Bainbridge, Mingo Junction.

The Rev. Donald E. Mitchell officiated for the wedding at half after seven o'clock in the manse of the Presbyterian church.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride chose for her wedding a portrait green wool gaberdine suit and a matching hat. She used wine accessories and pinned a burgandy orchid at the lapel of her suit.

James Drisco, Mingo Junction, was best man for Mr. Bainbridge.

Mrs. Madison in a deep wool jersey dressmaker suit with accents of black, received her guests at a buffet supper in her home following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a large decorated wedding cake.

Mrs. Eugene T. Benham, Columbus, selected for her nephew's wedding a black satin frock and used black accessories.

Among the guests were James Buchanan and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene T. Benham, Columbus, James Drisco, Mingo Junction, and Mrs. Mildred Miller, Troy. The bride donned a corresponding portrait green top coat over her wedding suit when they left Columbus on a plane trip for the West.

The new Mrs. Bainbridge was graduated from Circleville high school and attended Muskingum College. She now is a senior at Ohio State University, Columbus, where she is majoring in psychology in the College of Arts and Sciences. During World War II, she served fourteen months in the WAVES and was stationed at Naval Air Station, Anacostia, District of Columbia.

Mr. Bainbridge was graduated from Mingo Junction high school, and now is a junior in the pre-law College of Commerce at Ohio State University, Columbus. He is affiliated with Chi Phi fraternity. He served four and a half years in the Army in the Pacific theater of war and was commissioned a Lieutenant in the Infantry.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Bainbridge will make their home with her mother on North Scioto street upon their return from the West.

ART SEWING CLUB

FAMILY REUNION AT RISING PARK

Descendants of the late John George Roth, who came to America from Germany in the early 1850's and located in Amanda, held their first family reunion in Rising Park, Lancaster. All arrangements for the outing were made by Mrs. P. L. Greeno and Miss Golda Hedges, Amanda. The group decided to make the reunion a yearly event. Mrs. Homer Hedges, Amanda, was the only direct descendant who attended the gathering.

Dinner was served at the noon hour. Officers were chosen to serve for the coming year. Miss Hedges was named president, and Miss Helen Hedges, secretary-treasurer.

In the group were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Groff and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Alexander, Springfield; Mrs. H. A. Stoneberger, Newark; Mrs. Homer Hedges and daughters, the Misses Helen and Golda Hedges, Amanda; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Strickland, Williamstown, West Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Greeno, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brady, Miss Hazel Stoneburner and Robert Greeno, Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Greeno, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Statler, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheridan and son, Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pence and daughter, Judy Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Statler, Jr., and daughter, Nancy Anne, Lancaster.

CHURCH GROUP HOLDS MEETING

Members of the Ebenezer Social Circle met Thursday afternoon in the Home and Hospital, East Main street, for their September meeting. Mrs. Turney Pontious, president, was in charge of the devotional period. Prayer was offered by Mrs. A. H. Morris.

Readings were presented by Mrs. Charles Dresbach and Mrs. Charles F. Kiger. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee composed of Mrs. Eva Dresbach, Mrs. Guy Heffner and Miss Ethel Kiger. Hostesses for the October meeting will be Mrs. Kiger and her daughter, Miss Ethel Kiger in their home on route 1. The date will be announced later.

FOUR MEMBERS HONORED DURING G. O. P. MEETING

First meeting of the Fall season for members of G. O. P. Boosters was Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Harry Styers, Jr., South Pickaway street. She was assisted by Mrs. Marion I. Smith in extending hospitality to the group.

The meeting was called to order as the group repeated the pledge of allegiance to the flag and sang "America." Plans were formulated to study the history of the Republican party, which originated in 1854 at Rippon, Wisconsin. At the next meeting the group will study the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments.

Contests were held with prizes being awarded to Mrs. Wayne Stonerock, Mrs. Ernest Minor and Miss Lucille Dumm. The group voted to send a gift to a member who is ill.

To mark the wedding anniversary of Mrs. Stonerock, Mrs. Henry O'Hara and Mrs. Charles Winner the group presented them with gifts. The hostess received a gift in observance of her birthday anniversary.

Next meeting will be October 30 in the home of Mrs. B. M. Wigner, South Pickaway street, with Mrs. O'Hara and Mrs. Mary L. Smith, assisting hostesses.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Styers and Mrs. Smith at the conclusion of the meeting.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. James Pierce, Washington township, are spending a two-weeks visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. A. H. Perdon, New Haven, Connecticut. While in the East they will visit Professor Rufus Reid and Mrs. Reid, Upper Montclair, New Jersey, and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Backus, Miriden, Connecticut.

Mrs. L. K. Athey, East Mound street, is a guest for over the weekend with friends in Toledo.

BIG 9 SEASON BEGINS WITH SATURDAY TILT

Wisconsin 11 Favored Over Purdue; Other Teams Play Openers

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—The 15th Western Conference football season begins tomorrow with Purdue engaging Wisconsin at Madison, Wis.

At the same time half a dozen other Big Nine teams start campaigning for national honors in six non-conference games, of which number the Western Conference is favored to win exactly six.

The other remaining member of Tug Wilson's seven-state family, Dr. Eddie Anderson's bruising Iowa product, has an evening appointment with U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles tonight.

But the Iowans already have opened their season, having cuffed North Dakota State to the tune of 50 to 0 last Saturday.

WISCONSIN is given a 13-point edge but Stu Holcomb, new football coach at Purdue, hopes his first year won't be his last and may attempt to do something about it.

In the non-conference struggles on tomorrow afternoon's card, Fritz Crisler's Michigan toughy should have the least trouble of any. The Wolverines, power-packed and heavily favored to win the Big Nine title, are in the betting favored by no less than 33 points for their tilt with Michigan State at Ann Arbor.

At Columbus, another newly-arrived pilot, Wesley Fesler, trots out his Ohio State swiftness against Missouri.

FAVORED by 20 points are the "on-the-spot" gents from Illinois, defending Big Nine and Rose Bowl Champions. Ray Eliot's hearties play host at Champaign, Ill., to the University of Pittsburgh, which has a Big Nine schedule, but, unfortunately, no Big Nine team.

The third new face in the conference coaching ranks, youngish Bob Voigts at Northwestern, has found his Wildcats posted 13-point favorites to trip Vanderbilt at Evanston, Ill., although Voigts nervously murmurs he wishes he knew more about Vanderbilt. What he knows now, according to his own admission, is—nothing.

Another 13-point favorite, this one sound from stem to stern, is Bo McMillan's Indiana juggernaut, which moves into a promising year by facing Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb.

The betting gentry looks for the closest match at Minneapolis, where Bernie Bierman's untied stronghold, vicious up front but apparently nothing at all in the backfield, is rated seven points better than a charging University of Washington invader.

Little Tigers Defeat Greenfield Reserves 6-0

Dick Francis' touchdown in the closing minutes of an otherwise slow game gave the CHS reserves a 6-0 victory over the Greenfield reserves on the Circleville high school gridiron Thursday night.

For three and a half quarters the teams battled vainly in an effort to score. Both sides threatened but bad luck near the goal line stopped the marches until the final one.

Fans were ready to accept a scoreless tie when the little Tigers suddenly came to life.

STARTING on about their own 40, the Tigers went swiftly over the goal line. P. T. Smith fired a bullet pass which Dick Hartinger grabbed on the run at about his waist and set out for the goal line. However he was pulled down on about the 30-yard line.

A John Pfeiffer to Dave Cottrell jump pass made it first on down on the 12. Another one gained and the little Tigers had first down on the one-yard line. On the next play Francis "sneaked" over from his quarterback post. Pfeiffer's attempt to add the extra point by an end run failed by a yard.

In the third quarter the visitors drove to the four-yard line, but after a couple of fumbles Francis intercepted a pass and ran it to the 20-yard line.

IN THE FIRST quarter the little Tigers had their best chance to score but passed it up. A Smith-Hartinger pass put the ball on the four-yard line but

MILLER TOPS IN THURSDAY NIGHT CONTAINER LOOP

High man in the Container bowling league Thursday night at Kelly Hannan alleys was Miller who racked up a 506 for the evening and a 200 for his second game to lead the Container Quins to three victories over the Yard Birds. The Quins were top team with a total score of 2161.

A second shutout saw the Hotshots blanket the Sureshots, and the Agitators took two games from the Strikers.

TIGERS TREK TO WESTERVILLE FOR THIRD WIN

CHS 11 Expecting Sternest Test Of Young Season Friday Night

Circleville's football Tigers will head for Westerville Friday evening seeking their third straight victory of the season against a traditionally tough opponent which also entertains certain rather definite ideas about the outcome of the game.

Tussles between these two teams for the last two years have seen the Westerville eleven emerge on top. This year the local boys hope a different story will be recorded, and after all, maybe the third time will be the charm.

This year's edition of the Westerville team is not regarded as being quite so potent as the aggregation which humbled the Tigers last year, but even so, they will be plenty tough, and will have the added incentive of snapping the threatened Circleville win streak.

ADDED STRENGTH for the local backfield will be realized with the return to action of Bob Ferguson, who missed last week's game at Hillsboro because of blood poisoning in his arm. Expected to see little, if any action are Ralph Starkey, who suffered a groin injury, and Jim Mogan, who lost several teeth in the 1st game. The rest of the squad should be "raring to go" at the opening kickoff Friday.

Probably the same lineup will take the field for the Tigers which ran over Hillsboro last week.

This would put Stein and D. Smallwood at the ends; Elsea and Sabine at tackles; Woodward and Albright at the guards and G. Radcliff at center. The backfield will be composed of Paul Smallwood calling signals from the quarterback slot; Harold Hill, who has two touchdowns to his credit, in the left half position; "Red" Crawford, leading scorer with four touchdowns, will run from the right half position with John Valentine in there at fullback.

Scheduled game-time is 8 p. m.

CARDINALS WIN RUNNER-UP-SPOT; SCRAMBLE IN AL

With second place in the National League clinched by the St. Louis Cardinals, the Detroit Tigers, Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians launched a 3-day stretch drive today to determine the final runner-up in the junior circuit.

Today Detroit, with a one-game edge over the Red Sox, takes on Cleveland, which is still another game behind Boston. The Indians lost ground yesterday by dropping a 4-to-3 decision to the St. Louis Browns, but still have a chance to finish third or even second.

Boston's Braves, who up until yesterday had a chance to catch the second-place Cardinals, now must protect third place from the New York Giants, 2-1/2 games behind them.

The Giants yesterday beat the Braves, 3 to 1, in a duel between freshman Larry Jansen of New York and Johnny Sain, both of whom were seeking their 21st victory. Johnny Mize's 51st homer tied Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh for the lead in the major league home run derby.

The Cardinals trounced Pittsburgh twice, 15 to 3, behind a 22-hit barrage in the first game, and 3 to 1, in the nightcap.

Under the arc lights, the Brooklyn Dodgers beat the Phillies, 7 to 5, in a replay of their unfinished game of Aug. 17. Then in a regularly scheduled game, the Brooks gave Ralph Branca, Harry Taylor and Hank Behrman, World Series hopefuls, a final workout. The Dodgers scored three runs in the tenth inning to win, 5 to 2. The winning pitcher was rookie Willard Ramsdell.

BILLY HERMAN LEAVES PIRATES AS HEAD COACH

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26—Billy Herman, one of the National League's all-time great infielders, was without a job today.

President Frank McKinney of the Pittsburgh Pirates announced Herman's "resignation" last night as manager of the team, two hours after the Bucs lost a doubleheader to the St. Louis Cardinals. He said Billy the Kid, purchased last Fall from the Boston Braves, could remain in the organization if he so desired, and that his salary for 1948—reportedly $28,000—would be paid.

Taft Offers Middle of Road Foreign Policy

Ohio Senator Backs Marshall Plans, Blames Democrats For World Mess

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 26.—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) O., staked his presidential chances today on a militant "middle of the road" foreign policy, abroad or loose dealing with Russia.

In the most important speech of his western tour, Taft embraced the Marshall plan for foreign aid to stop Communism and blamed Democratic policies for a "situation as bad or worse than that which existed before the war."

POLITICALLY, the GOP senate leader was regarded as having:

1. Started a drive which may "smoke out" Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, his strongest White House opponent, on this and other major issues so far undiscussed by the 1944 presidential nominees.

2. Finally and firmly placed himself at the side of Senate President Vandenberg (R) Mich., on foreign policy—a step calculated to give greater force to GOP leadership in the 80th congress.

Taft gave the nation his own seven-point foreign policy program in a speech before the Tacoma world affairs council before leaving for Gearhart, Ore., where he will address a Republican audience tonight.

Taft paid repeated tribute to Vandenberg's foreign policy leadership. The senate foreign relations chairman's name was mentioned seven times in Taft's speech.

The Ohioan, it was understood, wanted to make it emphatically clear that in setting forth his own views he was not attempting to encroach upon the field of his Michigan colleague—also a potential presidential contender.

Taft blistered the Roosevelt and Truman foreign policies, blaming them for the present world crisis. He said:

"Foreign policy must be judged by its results, and the results of the foreign policy of the administration during the past three years have created a situation as bad as or worse than that which existed before the war, and have brought the world to a state of economic collapse.

"Certainly the administration whose policies have produced these results has no basis for appealing to the people for further confidence on the ground that they are peculiarly fitted at all to administer foreign policy."

Taft said that outside the actual conduct of the war "we could not have made a worse mess of our foreign policy than we did."

THE SENATOR declared that if Russia withdraws from "real participation in effective action by the United Nations," America should "proceed without Russia to perfect a United Nations which will operate in a limited field."

Taft called for this program:

1. Maintenance of peace so long as "conditions do not threaten the freedom" of Americans;
2. A foreign policy built around UN, emphasizing law and justice under law;
3. Opposition to Communism, eliminating it first in the U. S., then abroad;
4. A "self-support" program for Germany so that country can develop her own economy;
5. Economic aid to Europe under the Marshall plan without "lending money on a global scale" or creating an "international WPA";
6. A strong army and navy, holding the atomic bomb until Russia changes her attitude;
7. Peace with Japan as rapidly as possible.

More Accurate Star Study Possible With Proposed 120-Inch Telescope

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent

MOUNT HAMILTON, Cal.—The blueprint stage of the 120-inch telescope at the University of California's Lick Observatory is well advanced, and construction may start next year.

Prof. C. Donald Shane, director of the observatory, says the design of the instrument, for which $1,200,000 was appropriated by the state legislature, will make it one of the most versatile instruments of its kind in existence.

Design of the world's second largest telescope is being executed by W. W. Baustian, formerly at the California Institute of Technology. A model of the telescope, one-sixteenth of actual size, has been completed by Baustian for checking of problems which will be encountered in operation.

The 53-foot tube and 8-ton 16-inch-thick mirror of the new giant will rest in a huge 70-ton steel fork, the first mount of its kind on a large telescope. The entire sky, with the exception of that area five degrees from the horizon, can be covered by this type of mount.

A MOTOR in the hollow steel fork will drive the 35-ton tube and mirror, while another motor will rotate the fork. Dr. Shane says that the entire sky could be covered by this mount if it were desirable; but the results would not justify the added expense of designing the dome for this purpose.

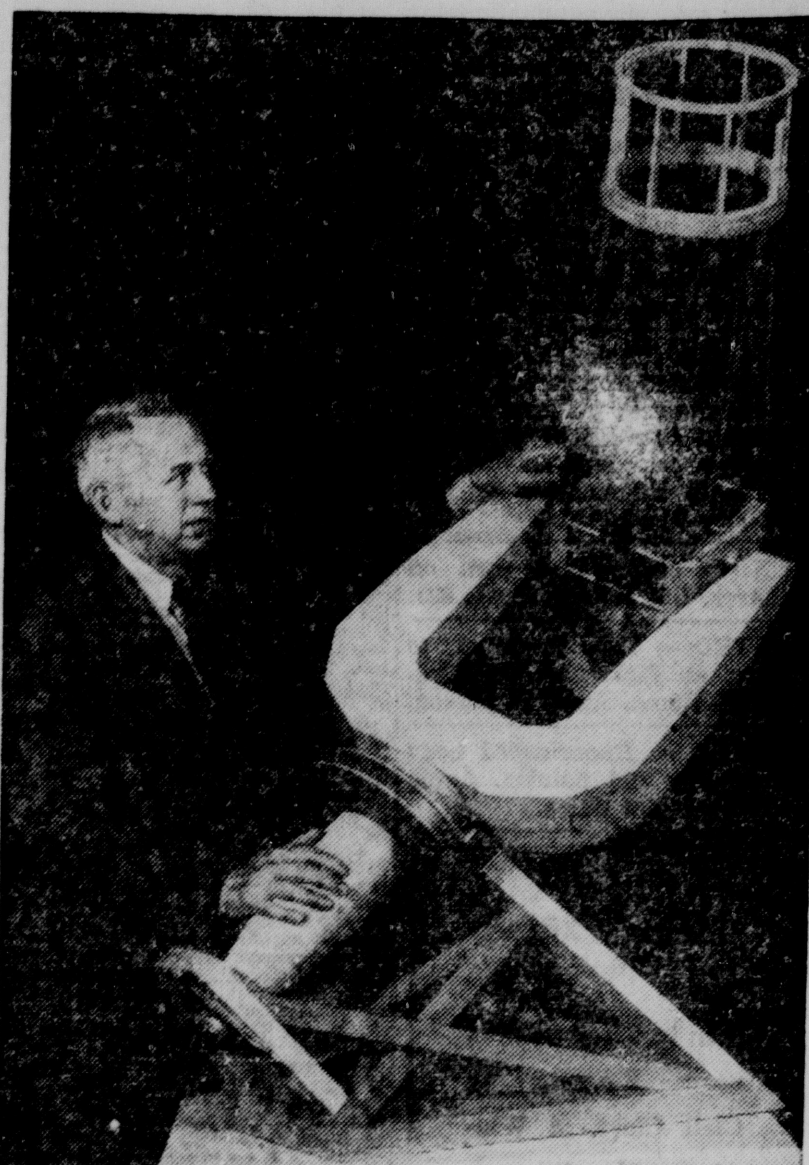

The dome of the building housing the telescope will have an inside diameter of 90 feet. Inside the building, power driven stairways and working scaffold will be able to follow the tube outlet to whatever angle is needed for observation. This is necessary because astronomers work with instruments which must be attached to the prime focuses at the top of the tube.

Dr. Shane explained that the lessons learned in the construction of the 200-inch telescope on Mount Palomar, the 100-inch instrument on Mount Wilson, and other telescopes have been applied to the design.

On the advice of Palomar designers the mirror will be of solid disc glass, making for easier grinding and polishing and greater freedom from bending under its own weight than a sectioned type mirror.

The conservative design of the telescope accounts for its versatility. All features of telescopes of similar size will be possible, and many of the advanced characteristics of the Palomar mirror can be added after the instrument is completed.

"We cannot anticipate all problems we will encounter," Dr. Shane says. "For that reason we are designing the instrument in such a way that we can incorporate almost any of the features of a large telescope."

GIANT EYE—W. W. Baustian and model of 120-in. telescope he'll build.

THE 120-INCH telescope will enable astronomers to explore the universe at a radius of 900 million light years, bringing within sight the spectra of fainter stars and stellar systems beyond the reach of most instruments.

It will be possible to mount several different types of equipment for astronomical observation on the telescope. Each type of observation is suited to different astronomical needs. The four types of focus which can be built are the prime, Newtonian, Cassegrain and Coude.

Dr. Shane says that it will take at least four years to complete the telescope after construction begins. A co-operative program of research will be undertaken with Mount Palomar astronomers in order that there will be no duplication of effort with the two big telescopes.

Then studies, not now possible, can be undertaken with the 120-inch telescope, such as:

1—Observations of faint members of the solar system such as comets and satellites.

2—Studies of the surface features of the moon and planets by rapid photography.

3—Chemical and physical analyses of the atmospheres of the brighter stars with more powerful spectroscopic equipment than is possible with present telescopes.

4—Similar studies of faint and distant stars now beyond the reach of present facilities. It is particularly important to determine the motions of these stars in order to acquire an understanding of the structure and mechanics of the stellar system as outlined by the Milky Way.

Investigations of remote galaxies of stars beyond the Milky Way and particular reference to motions and to the detailed structural features of the nearer galaxies. These studies afford the most fruitful means of understanding the structure and the evolution of the universe.

SPECIALISTS IN REGULAR ARMY BEING ACCEPTED

The Regular Army is accepting enlistments from men with certain military occupational specialties, for direct initial assignment to units and installations within the Second Army area.

Sergeant Paul Hoyt of the Army and Air Force Recruiting Service, announced today that men desiring to enlist in the Regular Army and remain within their local area are authorized to enlist for certain units which are under strength, providing they have certain military occupational specialties and enlist for a period of three years or more. A young man interested in an enlistment of this type will be permitted to choose, from a list of more than 30 units and installations, the organization with which he wished to serve. His initial assignment will be for a period of one year at the unit of his choice.

Sgt. Hoyt pointed out that this does not include enlistment for units of the Air Force. Enlistment for a specific Air Force base or unit, may be accomplished provided the applicant visits the base or unit concerned in person, and further provided that a vacancy in his particular military occupational specialty exists at such base. This assignment also will be for a period of one year.

Mary just as snippy as ever, Phil being his illiterate, insensitive best, Dennis the same mothers-boy and Don the enthusiastic salesman. But with a galaxy of guest stars slated for the year and many of Benny's usual hilarious "surprises," the program again promises to be the brightest and freshest on the air.

For the past 15 years, audience reveal that Jack Benny has the highest rating of any radio star-comedian, singer or actor. And in six of the twelve years since the Hooper poll was established, Mr. Benny has occupied first or second place with high ratings the other six years.

Alan Young, radio and film comedian, after several highly successful guest appearances, has been signed as a permanent cast member of CBS' Sunday Tony Martin Show.

Wise Appeals To Circleville Residents To Prevent Fires

CHIEF POINTS TO EXCESSIVE DAMAGE YEARLY

Care Can Stop Blazes Before They Start, Residents Of City Reminded

Appeal was made Friday by Talmer Wise, Circleville's fire chief, for the full cooperation of all residents of Circleville and Pickaway county in a nationwide campaign to cut fire losses.

Citing that President Truman has proclaimed the period from Oct. 5 to 11 as National Fire Prevention Week, Chief Wise pointed out that fires throughout the nation in 1947 threaten to take a toll of $700,000,000 in property losses and close to 11,000 lives—an increase of about 25 per cent over the 1946 totals.

The fire chief said that in 1946, he declared, may reach the alarming total of 40,000 more than the total listed as missing by the Army and Navy after four years of war and 30 times greater than the number of Americans who died in the African invasion. Chief Wise added that statistics indicate that in 1947 more than 3,500 farm residents will die in farm fires—an average of 10 a day.

HE SAID the time lost on the job because of fires would build 920,000 autos and is equivalent to one-fourth of the time lost as a result of strikes in 1946.

"Ninety per cent of all fires can be prevented," Chief Wise asserted. "Therefore, if you value your life, your family, your home, and your farm, be constantly on the alert to the causes of fire and how to eliminate them."

The fire chief said that five structural hazards responsible for numerous fires are:

- 1—Improperly installed heating plants.
- 2—Bad chimney construction.
- 3—Flammable wood shingle roofs.
- 4—Defective wiring.
- 5—Lack of lightning rods.

CARELESS smokers are to blame, Chief Wise declared, for approximately 130,000 fires in the United States annually with a total loss of about $44,000,000 a year.

He said that government statistics show that in 1946 the sale of cigarettes reached the huge total of 351 billion, which figures almost seven cigarettes a day for every man, woman and child in the United States, and with almost an equivalent number of matches used to light the cigarettes, every match and every glowing butt was the potential breeder of a destructive fire.

Chief Wise warned particularly against the habit of smoking in bed, in the barn, and in other outbuildings. He urged every family to have plenty of ash trays handy at all times, to make sure the matches and butts are out before discarding them, and to keep matches out of the reach of small children and in metal containers wherever possible.

PROBE HEIRESS' FOURTH WEDDING

SAN FRANCISCO authorities are investigating details of the marriage of Ann Cooper Hewitt, so-called "sterilized heiress," and Frank Nicholson which followed by 24 hours the apparent suicide of Nicholson's wife, Gertrude. A report showed that blood test clinical records issued to Ann and her bridegroom were dated five days before his wife was found dead.

Cowboy In Hospital Thinks of Horse 'Pal'

Suffering from a left hip fracture the thoughts of Roy Vincent, 38, one-time Montana cowboy now in Berger hospital, Friday were focused on his equine pal, "Silver", who died Tuesday morning from injuries received Monday night when horse and rider were hit by an auto on U. S. Route 23 near South Bloomfield.

Thrown from the horse, Vincent crawled to the side of the injured animal and managed to loosen the saddle before he collapsed.

When he was being placed in Deffenbaugh's ambulance Vincent pleaded that no one shoot "Silver" to end the horses suffering. His request was complied with. "Silver" died a dozen hours afterward in a field alongside the highway.

EXPLAINING that his brother Arthur Vincent, Groversville, N. Y., "gave" him, "Silver", Vincent declared Friday:

"I rode from Great Falls, Mont. rodeo. I visited my brother at Groversville last Summer, then rode to Newark, N. J. I rode and worked my way along."

Reminiscing about "Silver" and other equine friends, Vincent said:

"Silver, I miss you—and you know I always will. It was you and I all alone. I wonder what you are doing now? Maybe you are with Tony and Smokey and other pals. I wanted to be there when you died but they took me to the hospital. So I wasn't there. You were my ears. (Vincent is totally deaf). No more will I shoe you, or water you, but we will meet again—you and I and Tony and Tom and Smokey and Will."

Estimates say that by 1980 there will be 22,000,000 people in the United States over 65 years of age.

Wise Appeals To Circleville Residents To Prevent Fires

CHIEF POINTS TO EXCESSIVE DAMAGE YEARLY

Care Can Stop Blazes Before They Start, Residents Of City Reminded

Appeal was made Friday by Talmer Wise, Circleville's fire chief, for the full cooperation of all residents of Circleville and Pickaway county in a nationwide campaign to cut fire losses.

Citing that President Truman has proclaimed the period from Oct. 5 to 11 as National Fire Prevention Week, Chief Wise pointed out that fires throughout the nation in 1947 threaten to take a toll of $700,000,000 in property losses and close to 11,000 lives—an increase of about 25 per cent over the 1946 totals.

The toll of dead and injured, he declared, may reach the alarming total of 40,000 more than the total listed as missing by the Army and Navy after four years of war and 30 times greater than the number of Americans who died in the African invasion. Chief Wise added that statistics indicate that in 1947 more than 3,500 farm residents will die in farm fires—an average of 10 a day.

HE SAID the time lost on the job because of fires would build 920,000 autos and is equivalent to one-fourth of the time lost as a result of strikes in 1946.

"Ninety per cent of all fires can be prevented," Chief Wise asserted. "Therefore, if you value your life, your family, your home, and your farm, be constantly on the alert to the causes of fire and how to eliminate them."

The fire chief said that five structural hazards responsible for numerous fires are:

- 1—Improperly installed heating plants.
- 2—Bad chimney construction.
- 3—Flammable wood shingle roofs.
- 4—Defective wiring.
- 5—Lack of lightning rods.

CARELESS smokers are to blame, Chief Wise declared, for approximately 130,000 fires in the United States annually with a total loss of about $44,000,000 a year.
